

Black Eyed Peas Tour Blog

What's up ya'll? We are here on the end of the Eyed Peas' tour. I'm on a private airplane in Malaysia, going to Macau, China.

We started off in Jerusalem. That was a beautiful concert. It was right on the wall that separates Palestine from Israel.

Straight from there we flew to Ethiopia. I can't even explain it. We landed in a third world country. They were partying like 1999. Being around the beautiful Ethiopians, even though it was real poor, the concert and the experience there was the richest out of all the shows so far.

We went to Sweden next, which was awesome. It was the first Pepsi show. In Romania, the women were beautiful. I had a good time in Hungary. We went to a castle that they converted into a museum for the after-party.
