

James Brown's Son To Take DNA Test

AIKEN, S.C. – A South Carolina judge has ordered a paternity test for the 6-year-old son of a woman who claims to be James Brown's widow.

Judge Jack Early said Friday the DNA test on James Brown II should be completed within the next 30 days. Trustees handling the singer's estate questioned the claims of Tomi Rae Hynie that her son is Brown's son, attorneys representing Hynie and the child said.

Continue reading