A new Michael Jackson video from 2003 for the song "One More Chance" appeared online yesterday. This song will be included in a Michael Jackson box set called Vision that will be released later this month. It will be interesting to see the quality of all Michael Jackson's posthumous releases. The estate needs to make money but there is always the concern that a dead artist's legacy can be blemished with the release of material they would've never allowed.
