

J*DaVeY Announce Free EP Evil Christian Cop & Upcoming NeWest Tour with Blu + Valentines Day Video

(February 14, 2010 – New York, NY) Having been quiet for much of 2010, Los Angeles-based starlets J*DaVeY are excited to announce new developments for 2011, which includes the release of their second free EP entitled Evil Christian Cop, on February 21st, and a small tour to and fro SXSW with fellow LA-native Blu.

The 5-song Evil Christian Cop EP, which theyâ€™re releasing next Monday, February 21st, will be the second installment of their free, downloadable EP series, The Great Mistapes, which is available via their Bandcamp page: jdavey.bandcamp.com. Evil Christian Cop will be the first project the duo has released in over a year, the last one being the first installment of The Great Mistapes EP series, Boudoir Synema in December 2009. ECC further delves into the sound that J*DaVeY has been pioneering for years and showcases the multifaceted nature of their music.

J*DaVeY will also be touring with rapper Blu from San Francisco to Austin for the annual SXSW music conference and the East Coast in April and Europe in May. Exact dates will be announced soon on their new website theillav8r.com, which will launch later this week. The duo will be making their SXSW debut appearance this year at the Audible Treats x PrefixMag.com showcase at Nuvola, on Friday, March 18th.

For Valentineâ€™s Day, the duo released a short video that fills fans in on their plans for 2011.
