

Azealia Banks-1991

Azealia Banks really is riding the swagg of 1991's house music with a visual that evokes Crystal Waters and a sound reminiscent of Steve "Silk" Hurley. There was a time when there was a thing called hip-house and "1991" could inspire a new run of it. General listeners may be more open to it from Banks instead of all the hate thrown at Diddy's Last Train To Paris.
