“Too Blind To See It” is Kym Sim’s 1991 dance hit that was written and produced by house music pioneer Steve “Silk” Hurley. Sims started her music career as a singer for commercials until she started working with Hurley. She had another popular club tune produced by Hurley with “Take My Advice” in 1992. Her success with dance music in the early ’90’s also took the form of being a co-writer on Cece Peniston’s “Keep On Walkin.’” Syms took a break from recording in the late ’90’s and returned to music in 2000 with the single “Just Can’t Get Enough.”
