

MeLo-X-Baby Eye

“Baby Eye” is the first single from MeLo-X’s forthcoming Curate EP. On the first listen “Baby Eye” is a romantic plea for love but there is another layer to the song MeLo-X explains: I wrote “Baby Eye” last year in L.A., around the time when the cop that killed Eric Garner was acquitted. “Baby Eye” feels like a happy song. The chorus is, “Baby, I want to see your body next to mine.” You think we’re in bed or something. But then I say, “Baby, I want to see you move your mind.” I wrote it thinking about being together while revolting and having her by my side. I want to see her move the people and move souls.”
