

Kendrick Lamar's Performance At The 58th Grammy Awards

Kendrick Lamar's performance of "The Blacker The Berry" and "Alright" at The Grammy's last night started with a prison stage set and ended with Lamar making a connection between Compton and Africa with African dancers and a fire. Lamar's use of live music and jazz made the show sound like an avant-garde session lead by the spirit of John Coltrane. He took home five awards including Rap Album Of The Year but some people believe he should have won Album Of The Year instead of Taylor Swift.
