

Chance The Rapper Is Last 2016 Musical Guest On Saturday Night Live

Chance The Rapper was the last 2016 musical guest on Saturday Night Live last night and he is also the first unsigned rapper to have the opportunity. He performed "Finish Line/Drown," "Same Drugs" and "Jingle Barack." The latter was a tribute to Barack Obama's last month in office and Run DMC's "Christmas In Hollis." Chance The Rapper dressed up as DMC and Kenan was Run and by the end of the skit, the real DMC joined them. The Chicago rapper made history by garnering seven Grammy nominations as an independent artist and having the first streaming-only album to be nominated.
