Google Brings Fashion + Tech to Life at "Dress Code"

(l-r): CS+Fashion Industry panelists Nina Walia, Janne Kyttanen; Dalia MacPhee, Nina Vir, Ishmael Mayhew and Bria Sullivan pose for a photo on stage at Google CS+X Series: Dress Code at Google Los Angeles Office on October 12, 2017 in Venice, CA

(Los Angeles) -Â October 19, 2017Â – Last week,Â Google, in partnership with theÂ National Center for Women & Information TechnologyÂ (NCWIT),Â Bella Graham Consulting,Â Eileen Kahn ConsultingÂ andÂ TheRoot.comÂ hosted "Dress Code," a tech-meets-fashion event designed to show high school teens that computer science can take many forms.

Hosted by actress/singer/modelÂ Cierra RamirezÂ clad in an LED dress,Â "Dress Code" featured an interactive tech fair that included robots, 3D-printed items, E-textiles, Android watches and a VR experience. Additionally, guests enjoyed motivational panel discussions with YouTube creators and fashion VIPs.

Speakers includedÂ Daraiha GreeneÂ (Head of CS in Media Multicultural Strategy, Google);Â Shirin SalemniaÂ (Founder & CEO of PlayWerks and WhizGirls Academy);Â Jon YoushaeiÂ (Product Marketing Manager, Google);Â Cloe CoutureÂ (YouTuber);Â Darren MouldenÂ (Fashion, Lifestyle, and Travel Influencer);Â Ale La ChulaÂ (YouTuber and Owner, LA Sunnies);Â Jon PhenomÂ (Digital Media Strategist/Fashion Branding);Â Brittany DkeÂ (YouTuber);Â Bria SullivanÂ (Software Engineer, Google);Â Nina VirÂ (Founder and CEO, Daily Dress Me);Â Nina WaliaÂ (Experience Design Lead, Jacquard by Google);Â Janne KyttanenÂ (3D Designer, and Co-Founder, Pixsweet);Â Dalia MacPheeÂ (Celebrity Fashion Designer); andÂ Ishamel MayhewÂ (Digital Media Strategist/Fashion Branding).

"Dress Code" is the third event in Google's "CS+X" series, a program that travels the country talking to students about how their passions can become coding careers. Prior CS+X events were "Hacking the Note," which highlighted CS+Music, and "Program the Beat," which encouraged students to see how dance comes alive with code. The next event, a CS+Sports discussion entitled "Tech Slam," will take placeÂ October 26Â in Mountain View, CA.

[youtube id="AfK7VXO9eKk"]