

Throwback: Liz Hogue-Dream Lover

[youtube id="4pi4v-Irju4"] Liz Hogue's 1989 "Dream Lover" single was written and produced by Chris Jasper and released on his Gold City Records via CBS. The Philadelphia vocalist had sung background for a variety of people during the '80s including Grover Washington, Jean Carne, Kashif, Teddy Pendergrass and Club Nouveau. Her uncle was the late Norman Harris who was a producer for Philadelphia International Records. Vicious & Fresh is her lone solo album and "Dream Lover" was popular on smooth jazz stations around the country. She was compared to singers Regina Belle, Anita Baker and Phyllis Hyman because of the strength and range of her voice. Hogue did not release any more solo music but she still performs around her Philadelphia hometown. In 2016, she gave a rare live performance of "Dream Lover" at Gerald Veasley's Unscripted Jazz Series.

Media Questions Of The Week

Is Justin Timberlake going to invite Janet Jackson to perform on his Superbowl Halftime Show?

[youtube id="sP0TvQ-qj2A"]

Why did Fox & Friends have a Black child dressed as a watermelon?

What will be the outcome of Robert Mueller's federal investigation into possible collusion between Russia and the Trump campaign?

City Council Declares Oct 28th As The Official Uncle Jamm's Army Day

[youtube id="0hZ3WIS3qBo"] The City Council of Los Angeles declares October 28th as Uncle Jamm's Army Day to acknowledge their influence on west coast hip-hop culture. The day coincides with Red Bull Music Academy's A Conversation With Ice-T as part of the Red Bull Music Academy Festival Los Angeles.

Ice-T will talk about the first electro and hip-hop party that grew from local high school dances to selling out arenas in a few years. Uncle Jamm's Army DJs including Dr. Funkenstein, Egyptian Lover, Arabian Prince, Chris "The Glove" Taylor, and DJ Bobcat demonstrated how electro and hip-hop could co-exist then and its significance now.

Red Bull Music Academy debuted the new documentary episode from The Note titled Uncle Jamm's Army: Pioneers of the Modern Party that looks at the history of these events and their impact on the west coast scene.

At the end of the evening on the 28th Egyptian Lover, Ice-T & The Glove, DJ Bobcat, Arabian Prince, Alonzo Williams & Cli-N-Tel (World Class Wreckin' Cru), Dr. Funkenstein, and L.A.

Dream Team will take part in a celebration of their pioneering work.

Watch the documentary above and you can also catch both events “A Conversation With Ice-T” and “Uncle Jamm’s Army” live on Red Bull Radio.

Big K.R.I.T.-4Eva Is Mighty Long Time Album Stream

Big K.R.I.T.’s double album 4eva Is Mighty Long Time is here. The new album is his first release since becoming independent last year after splitting with Def Jam. T.I., Joi and CeeLo Green are just a few of the guests on the 22-song project. K.R.I.T. has also been busy executive-producing Bun B’s upcoming album. K.R.I.T. spoke to NPR and explained every song on 4eva Is A Mighty Long Time.