The Prince estate has announced a concert event of the late musician onscreen with a super-band of his lifelong collaborators. PRINCE: Live On The Big Screen will feature never-seen audio and video of Prince. It will take place on April 21st which will be the second anniversary of his passing. The show is part of Celebration 2018, a series of events meant to honor Prince all year long. Tickets go on sale January 20th. So far there is no word on the event being available to fans not able to attend via streaming or a video release of the concert at a later date.
