Cassowary's "Starlight" is the latest song to be shared from his forthcoming debut album. The Los Angeles-based artist explained the jazzy electro piece in a statement:

"Starlight" is about the allure of fame, wanting to be a star and the infatuation with that...I was inspired by the common belief that fame can fix your problems and gives you all the answers when the reality is that exposure can ultimately lead to complications. I wanted to show my inner dialogue on the situation, and also relate to people's desire to be significant."

"Starlight" follows the video for "Belt Notch." Cassowary's self-titled album comes out on April 24th.Â
