

Media Questions Of The Week

[youtube id="UnWDWaledNQ"]

Was it more appropriate for Nas to criticize a male rapper on "Ultra Black" instead of Doja Cat who is a pop star?Â

This is a historic photograph. And a chilling one.
<https://t.co/eXD5Em48tW>

– Marianne Williamson (@marwilliamson) August 15, 2020

What will be done about President Trump's tampering with postal services before the upcoming election?

"...major labels bear responsibility for limiting R&B's reach. They're unwilling to imagine the genre occupying a different place in the music ecosystem, where "pop" is at the top & everything else is a second-class citizen." <https://t.co/km88iMvodk> via @RollingStone

– Craig Seymour, Black gay music critic (@craigspoplife)
August 14, 2020

Are Charlie Wilson, Ledisi and Anthony Hamilton right to go independent because record labels have such a limited vision for the marketing of the genre?Â