Robert Glasper has unearthed his newest single "Better Than I Imagined" and it features H.E.R. and Meshell Ndegeocello. The song is inspired by Black love and the need to affirm it during the visibility of Black Lives Matters. Glasper made a statement:

"Black lives matter and so does black love; no one wants a life without love, but we have generations of people in our community who havenâ \in ™t had the tools to actually be in healthy relationships. It seems like people are finally ready to open their eyes to systemic racism in this country, and if weâ \in ™re going to talk about it, we have to also talk about how it affects our relationships â \in " how we communicate, how we see ourselves, how we treat each other. Itâ \in ™s not always good, even though maybe it could be.â \in П

"Better Than I Imagined" will appear on Glasper's Black Radio 3 scheduled for release in 2021. Glasper will be performing at the 2020 March On Washington in DC with bassist Derrick Hodge this Friday, August 28th.
