

Quincy Jones's Qwest TV Debuts One Night Stand Docu-Series

Quincy Jones's QWEST TV has debuted One Night Stand, a new docu-series that pairs two very different artists together for each episode. The collaborations are designed to bring about cultural exchange and each one is spontaneous, without the artists knowing who they will work with and no live audience. The first episode aired on November 17th and it featured 92-year-old composer David Aram, who played with Dizzy Gillespie in the 1950s and singer-songwriter Cheyenne Mize. The second episode features musician Seun Kuti who is the son of Afrobeat pioneer Fela Kuti and 18-year-old drum prodigy Kojo Roney. Meshell Ndegeocello is scheduled to appear on an episode in 2023. One episode per month will air on QWEST TV. For more information about QWEST TV check out the official site.