

Kevin Ross Reveals “Look My Way” From Midnight Microdose

Kevin Ross releases the flirtatious “Look My Way” before the release of his next project. The R&B singer celebrates courtship and the early days of a romance with a style heavily influenced by The Jackson 5. “Look My Way” is about finding that particular person and trying to capture their attention for a romantic connection. He shares the excitement of pursuing love from afar with a passion that transcends carnal fixations with promises of security and emotional contentment. His cadence sounds a bit like a young Michael Jackson and his intentions are just as innocent as The J5’s school-aged lyrics. The new single will be on his forthcoming Midnight Microdose release and is the perfect song for Valentine’s Day lovers. Ross released his last collection of songs in 2021 with the Drive 2 album which entered the Top Ten positions on iTunes and Billboard charts. "Look My Way" breaks his musical fast and gives words and notes to anyone in the first phases of romantic love
