Brooklyn rock star Fusilier announces his new album, Ambush, with the video for “Nightmare Muscle.” Fusilier’s latest single is an autobiographical piece about ambition, and the video of him running in a game of cat and mouse was filmed in New York City. He describes Ambush as an attempt to rearrange the globe. He says, “When I started Ambush, I thought it was something I was doing—bombarding the world with a bunch of world-changing songs. The more I thought about it and fleshed it out, the more I realized that it was something being done to me every day, from seemingly innocent advertisements to full-on macro aggressions. ”

Fusilier’s “Nightmare Muscle” is the second single to emerge from Ambush. Last month he released “Birds,” which was his first release since releasing the Treason EP in 2022. Ambush comes out on March 28th.
