

Rapper Invinceable Teams With Jon B And Battlecat To Address The War Abroad And On The Streets

Twenty three year old rapper, Invinceable lost his cousin and friend when Vargas was taken away from him that sad day in March of this year. An unfortunate phenomenon sweeping urban communities across America, young men and women, are the street soldiers of our times. They are losing their lives, dying like flies. Invinceable knew he had to do something. His cousin's short life could not, would not be in vain.

"A Soldier Never Dies" is his hip hop tribute to not only Vargas but to all our young soldiers, fighting the war not only overseas, but also to those falling victim to the war here in the streets daily. Produced by the west coast's legendary Battlecat, whose platinum credits include Snoop Dogg, The Game and Xzibit, with the hook sung by R&B/pop crooner sensation Jon B, "A Soldier Never Dies" rings as an anthem for today's youth in these troubled times.
