

The Music Industry's Proposed Music Tax

What would you do if a bully—let's call him "Joey Giggles"—kept snatching your ice-cream cone? OK, now what if Joey Giggles then told you, "If you pay me five bucks a month, I'll stop snatching your ice cream." Depending on how much you hate getting beaten up, and how much you love ice-cream cones, you might decide that caving in is the way to go. This is what's called a protection racket. It's also potentially the new model for how we'll buy and listen to music.

Continue reading

---

Malcolm X's Grandson

Read story here

---

James Brown's Son To Take DNA Test

AIKEN, S.C. — A South Carolina judge has ordered a paternity test for the 6-year-old son of a woman who claims to be James

Brown's widow.

Judge Jack Early said Friday the DNA test on James Brown II should be completed within the next 30 days. Trustees handling the singer's estate questioned the claims of Tomi Rae Hynie that her son is Brown's son, attorneys representing Hynie and the child said.

Continue reading

---

Meet Karina Paisan