

B Working It To Death

I was never a Beyonce fan but after seeing this video I am a fan. She fell down, got back up and never missed a beat. She is a true professional and I respect her.

B and her father have nothing to be ashamed or embarrassed about stuff happens and she used it to her advantage. Many of today's so-called performers can learn from this incident. Rock on B!

New Book: Wild Style The Sampler by Charlie Ahearn (powerHouse)

In 1982, a small independent movie written, produced and directed by Charlie Ahearn was released, first in Germany, Japan and Cannes, then finally in Times Square. Wild Style, the first film to unite the elemental art forms of nascent Hip Hop culture was filmed on location in the South Bronx without permits or pretensions. Some twenty-five years after it's release, Wild Style is truly a classic, having inspired countless artists, musicians, and writers with unforgettable scenes starring the era's most memorable personalities.

To celebrate the film's silver anniversary, Wild Style The Sampler provides an inside look at the making of the film, it's release, and the reverberations it caused around the world. Narrated by Ahearn, the book introduces us to a cast of characters and outrageous adventures through a carefully curated collection of never-before-published photographs, original artwork, production stills, archival materials. Fab 5 Freddy, LEE Quinones, LADY PINK, ZEPHYR, Patti Astor, Busy Bee, Grandmaster Caz, Frosty Freeze, and Glenn O'Brien share personal stories. Artists, writers, and musicians offer commentary on the influence of Wild Style the film. including Sacha Jenkins, Carlo McCormick, GrandWizzard Theodore, Melle Mel, Biz Markie, SHARP, REVOLT, Martha Cooper, Cathy Campbell, Cut Chemist, DJ Krush and many others. Additional photographs were provided by Hip Hop's pioneering photographers, Joe Conzo, Martha Cooper and Henry Chalfant. Recounting the film's influence over the past quarter century, Wild Style The Sampler offers incomparable insight into Hip Hop's most indelible film.
