

Black Eyed Peas Share More From Elevation With Simply The Best Feat. Anitta & EL Alfa

Watch Black Eyed Peas in their video for “Simply The Best” featuring Anitta and El Alfa. It is the second single from their forthcoming Elevation album. They dropped “Don’t You Worry” featuring Shakira and David Guetta during the summer. “Simply The Best” has a global flavor with Latin chords and El Alfa’s rapid-fire rap in Spanish. The party track is produced over a house beat and uses the piano to hold it all together. Elevation is the group’s ninth album and Will.i.am says,

“We were behind the front, then we bridged the gap. We rode an elephant’s back to realize the industry was full of monkey business. That was the end, but the end is new beginnings. Becoming masters of the sun, mastering the industry, we realized we had to have translation in this complex world. But we be falling up, and never falling down. Black Eyed Peas is known for elevation. This is the next stage for us, reaching higher.”

Elevation will be properly released on November 11th.

Is will.i.am right that it's a mistake not to see the Black Eyed Peas as a Black group just because they had international success?

The Black Eyed Peas Start Summer With Be Nice Feat. Snoop Dogg Official Video

[youtube id="gHN-EhL8x3g"]The Black Eyed Peas and Snoop Dogg have a good time at a roller rink encouraging everyone to "Be Nice." The song comes from will.i.am's guest appearance on the TV show Songland where songwriters compete to have their composition recorded by a known artist. Adam Friedman wrote "Be Nice" and will.i.am took it into the studios to give it the Black Eyed Peas treatment. The group released their Masters Of The Sun, Vol. 1 album last year and now they have a summer song with "Be Nice."
