

John Legend & Black Pumas Perform For Biden-Harris Inauguration

Watch John Legend perform Nina Simone's "Feeling Good" for the Biden-Harris Inauguration. Legend gives a passionate rendition that reflects his happiness over the ending of the Trump presidency that he and his wife Chrissie Teigen openly criticized. The Black Pumas gave a performance of their song "Colors" but not before singer Eric Burton congratulated the new president and vice-president on their historic win.Â

The Black Pumas Perform Colors Live On GMA

The Black Pumas perform "Colors" on Good Morning America with Jack Johnson. The duo is getting ready for the physical release of the deluxe version of their debut album on October 9th. The updated edition has new music and photos including a cover of Tracy Chapman's "Fast Car." There is a 7-inch of Beatles and blues singer Bobby Blue Bland covers as well. The album is available digitally now. It's been a big year for the band with all of their television appearances and the growth of their audience. Their blues and soul is giving people hope through the quarantine. The physical copies of the album can be pre-ordered from the usual places.Â

Watch: Black Pumas-Colors

[youtube id="2EntxPIULUI"] Austin, Texas soul duo Black Pumas are having a career breakthrough after the release of their self-titled second album last year. The buzz around their album has brought them a Grammy nomination for Best New Artist. Singer Eric Burton and guitarist Adrian Quesada got together by an introduction through mutual friends. Burton was a local singer and Quesada was a former member of the Latin funk band Grupo Fantasma. The band's name comes from Quesada's interest in jaguars and is a play on Black Panthers. "Colors" is on the way to becoming their big song and the video is a lively scene that takes place in the Bronx.Â Â