

New Music From Butterfly And Doodlebug

Digable Planets died way too soon and although each member released individual solo projects nothing had the same impact as the insects together. Butterfly and Doodlebug have recorded new music and uploaded it to their Myspace page. They sound just as clear as they did back in '93! A tour is scheduled to start in October with each band member showcasing their individual groups as well as Digable material. Who knows maybe they will get Ladybug Mecca to join them on some of the dates. In addition to their new collaborative music Butterfly has a new Cherrywine concern and Doodlebug has a current Cosmic Funk Allstars album.
