

Body Count Releases Quarantine Video For Point The Finger Feat. Riley Gale

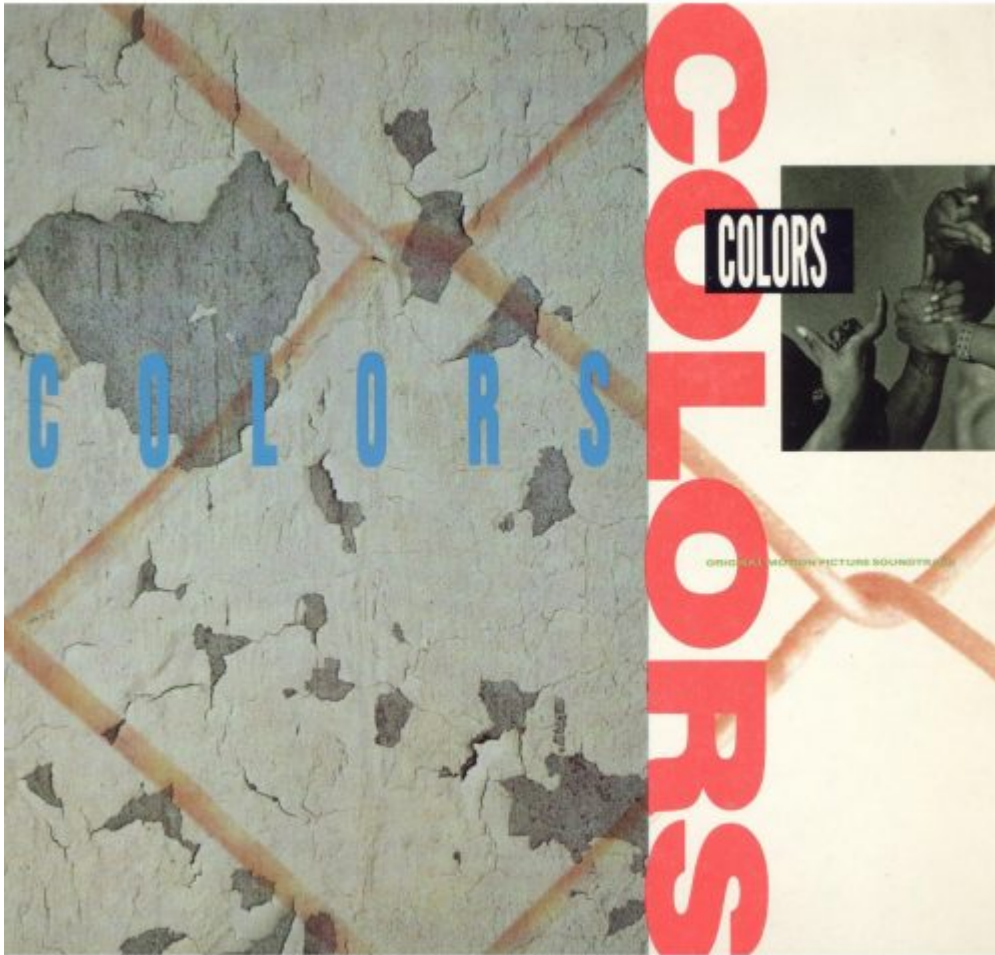

Body Count is Ice-T (vocals), Ernie C (guitar, backing vocals), Juan Garcia (guitar, backing vocals), Vincent Price (bass, backing vocals), Ill Will (drums), Sean E Sean (samples, backing vocals)

Ice-T's Body Count band released a new album, Carnivore in March. But thanks to the pandemic they can't tour like everyone else. Ice-T explains at the beginning of the video that he had everyone film themselves individually and all the clips were edited together. "Point The Finger" featuring Riley Gale of Power Trip is about cops who kill innocent people and get away with it.Â

[youtube id="T3Hi6Dgq8gU"]

---

Throwback: Ice-T-Colors

[youtube id="LI8Zx_QvNVU"]Ice-T recorded "Colors" for the soundtrack of the Dennis Hopper film of the same name in 1988. Ice-T was enjoying the success of his debut album, Rhyme Pays which had the definitive gangsta rap track "6 in the Mornin'" when he recorded "Colors." The album was also the second one ever to have a label for explicit content. He wrote and produced the song about the Los Angeles gang crisis with Afrika Islam who he worked with on his first four albums. His status as a street rapper gave his voice authority when he started rapping about Crips and Bloods. "Colors" helped the soundtrack make Gold status within months of its release and is one of the things most remembered about the movie. Hopper's film and Ice-T's song were one of the earliest mainstream critiques of west coast gang culture. "Colors" influenced Ice-T to go deeper into his critique of American society and his sophomore album Power continued his attack on what he saw as the problems in the culture. It was during this time period when Ice-T established himself as one of the most salient voices in hip-hop. The rapper and actor has released eight albums as Ice-T and six albums with his rock band Body Count. His 35-year acting career appearing in numerous films and television shows includes an almost 20-year stint on Law & Order: Special Victims Unit.

---

Media Questions Of The Week

Did Jimmy Iovine really ask Diddy “Why don’t you have two-light skinned girls?” instead of Dawn Richard and Kalenna Harper for the group Dirty Money?Â

White people.. Don’t lose your Fn minds because I’ve never eaten a Bagle.. Take it easy... lol

– ICE T (@FINALLEVEL) November 9, 2018

I’ve never drank a cup of Coffee ?? either... Go CRAZY!!!

– ICE T (@FINALLEVEL) November 9, 2018

Why don’t people believe Ice-T after he revealed he’s never had coffee or eaten a bagel?Â

---

Body Count Confronts Police Brutality With Black Hoodie

[youtube id="a_0xYamFYI"] Body Count attacks police brutality with their “Black Hoodie” single. Ice-T and the band are filmed in a parking garage playing the song as the narrative of the unarmed Black man shot and killed by the police is enacted onscreen. The black hoodie is a reference to the one worn by Trayvon Martin and the general idea that all hoodie-wearers are criminals. Body Count’s Bloodlust comes out

Friday.