

James Biscuit Rouse Releases New Single In Between Times

James “Biscuit” Rouse is usually behind the scenes as a drummer for people like Lauryn Hill, Vernon Reid, Kindred The Family Soul and more. His penchant for singing and songwriting surfaced in 2014 when he released the singles “Hey Mr. Miller” and “Real Me.” The full scope of his abilities has struck again with his new song “In Between Times.” Rouse’s Stevie Wonder-influenced tone sings about the craziness of life with guitar work that unites soul and rock with a driving beat underneath. Nia Distribution released “In Between Times” which is available at all the usual online retailers.Â
