Captain Keith of the Klefsigns brand describes The Rhyme Institute as a podcast of hip-hop from the past, present, and future. Vol. 1 is out, and the playlist is a mix of everyone from Little Brother to Lil Durk. Keith usually is one-third of the monthly Movie Bench Quarterbacking podcast with Jay and Wayne Da Que via the Anchor platform. The three podcasters talk about pop culture and review movies. Their monthly discussions sound like three people talking in the movie theater after the credits have rolled. Check out The Rhyme Institute's first episode below and stay tuned for more from Keith and crew.
