

Charles Wright Talks Music And Life

Charles Wright is the founder of The Watts 103 Street Rhythm Band. The band is famous for their 1970 “Express Yourself” recording, sampled and covered by N.W.A. The version from the Compton rap group was their only radio-friendly single. Wright mostly talks about his life growing up in the South and music. He is the author of Up: From Where We've Come and Express Yourself My Life Journey Through Funk Music. Mr. Wright is still recording music, and these days he has immersed himself in preserving blues music. He informs fans of his current work via his official website and social media.

Media Questions Of The Week

Ep. 11 Ice Cube X Tucker: the studio interview
pic.twitter.com/fcSkF76l3a

– Tucker Carlson (@TuckerCarlson) July 27, 2023

Was Ice Cube banned from appearing on The View and Oprah?

Should breakdancing be classified as a sport at the Paris Olympics?

Ice Cube: That New Funkadelic Official Video

[youtube id="m2l1ffEB5NU"]Ice Cube shares his longtime love for P-Funk with a video for "That New Funkadelic." The hallucinogenic kaleidoscope look of the visual has Ice Cube in the middle of swirling colors, a dancing woman and a low-rider. All of the movement keeps eyeballs stuck to the changing scenes directed by James Larese. The West Coast legend is flying off of the long-awaited release of Everything's Corrupt.^Â

Ice Cube Releases Everything's Corrupt

Ice Cube's long-awaited Everythangs Corrupt is out and it is full of fire and commentary on America's love of money. The 16-song album has one feature from Too Short and it is the first full-length effort since I Am The West that came out in 2010. Everythangs Corrupt was originally scheduled for a 2015 release date. Ice Cube starting sharing music from the album with the title track in 2012. The timing of the release today is on time with all the political tensions in the country which is reflected in the second single "Arrest The President."Â