[youtube id="eIRrgdRkY30"] Marvel's Black Panther: A Nation Under Our Feet Part Nine debuts "Born A Snake" by P.O.S. in its latest episode. The monthly video series is written by Atlantic national correspondent and MacArthur GeniusÂ Ta-Nehisi Coates. The series started last year and it pairs Coates' commentary on the comic with hip-hop.

P.O.S. is thrilled to have "Born A Snake" in the series and had this to say, "n crazy and unprecedented times like we are living in right now, I think theÂ *Black Panther*Â comic is more important than ever,â€ saidÂ Alexander.Â â€œNot just for young black comic book reading kids, but really for everyone of all races and ages. Comics have always been an escape and a window into different peopleâ€™s ideas. In my humble opinion, Coates, his ideas, and these characters should be celebrated by everyone. The more examples and shades of blackness available, the better and I am honored to be a part of this.â€

"Born A Snake" is on P.O.S.' Chill, dummy coming out March 17th.
