Did Silk Sonic not submit their album to the Grammys to make it easier for other artists to win?

Silk Sonic Perform Con Funk Shun's Love's Train At The Billboard Music Awards

Bruno Mars and anderson.paak's R&B partnership as Silk Sonic made their Billboard Music Awards debut with a performance of Con Funk Shun's 1983 classic "Love's Train." The duo took over the stage in their '70s attire and gave one of the night's best performances. They had nominations for Top R&B Album, Top

R&B Song, Top R&B Artist and Top Duo/Group. They did not win but Mars took home one award for Top R&B Tour for his Park MGM Grand residency.

Bruno Mars Announces Silk Sonic Release Date

Bruno Mars has revealed the release date for the Silk Sonic project comprised of himself and anderson.paak. They already gave a preview earlier this year with the singles “Leave The Door Open” and “Skate.” Mars posted the November 12th release date on his Twitter account October 8th which was his birthday. There is a photo of him, paak and Bootsyt Collins who makes a guest appearance on the album. An Evening With Silk Sonic will be released in November instead of the original 2022 date.

Bruno Mars & Anderson.Paak Perform 'Leave The Door Open' At The Grammys

Bruno Mars and Anderson.Paak perform "Leave The Door Open" as Silk Sonic at the Grammys. They reference the '70s in sound and fashion with big lapel polyester suits with wide-legged bell-bottom pants. Their nostalgic tribute to soul music from the past will be released as a full-length album in May. The live performance took place at the Los Angeles Convention Center. Paak also took home his third Grammy after winning Best Melodic Rap Performance for his single "Lockdown."
