

Media Questions Of The Week

Visit msnbc.com for Breaking News, World News, and News about the Economy

1. Was it necessary for anyone to comment on Michelle Obama's shorts???

2. Why is Steven Spielberg making a movie based on The Adventures Of Tintin, a book glorifying colonialism that was banned by the Brooklyn Public Library after customers complained? Spielberg's adaptation of the film will not use any "objectionable material." But how is that possible if the premise of the comic book is based in racist ideology? It's even more disturbing to think about because Spielberg has an adopted Black son.

3. In the gender controversy involving South African runner Caster Semenaya's gender, isn't that something that would've been verified by sports officials before she was allowed to compete?