

Media Questions Of The Week

1. Was it really necessary for Tyler Perry to cast Kim Kardashian in "The Marriage Counselor?"

2. Why does Gayle King have a tattoo of 50 Cent on her arm even if it is a joke?

3. Isn't it too bad that Gil Scott-Heron is not here for the Occupy Movement?

---

Media Questions Of The Week

1. Has Lil' B pulled off the biggest publicity move in rap so far by titling his album I'm Gay or is it the most progressive move in hip-hop?

[youtube]Y0nY6cx-nBI[/youtube]

2. Isn't it great that Tyler Perry called out Spike Lee for attacking him? Especially considering the facts that Spike was also criticized earlier in his career for stereotyping Black woman and Italians in movies like "Jungle Fever" and "Do The Right Thing." Lee's gripes about Perry's coonery are also disturbing because he does not level the same critique at people like Martin Lawrence, Jamie Foxx and Eddie Murphy for wearing dresses and portraying negative caricatures of Black women.

3. How will Soulja Boy's remake of "Juice" turn out?

---

Media Questions Of The Week

[youtube]95EIcIHU20s&[/youtube]

1. Why do people think that Nicki Minaj has no agency in her career? And isn't it interesting that all of these people worried about Nicki Minaj's pernicious effect on our culture don't talk about the fact that Rah Digga just released an album or that Invincible even exists???

[youtube]f3A5BpR_mtI[/youtube]

2. Do people really believe that Ntozake Shange would let Tyler Perry butcher For Colored Girls?

3. How much longer will Charlie Sheen get a pass for bad behavior? And why does he use the N-word so much when he's of Latin descent?

---

Tyler Perry Introduces For Colored Girls Cast At Premiere

[youtube]ASQ7nErNqDM[/youtube]

Tyler Perry introduces the cast of For Colored Girls at the Ziegfeld Theater in NYC Monday night. It's going to be fun to see all the haterade splash around about this one.