

Vampr App Launches Free Music Distribution

Vampr, the social networking app for musicians and creatives is now offering free music distribution to its users. Regular members of Vampr can send their music to Spotify, Apple, Amazon, Deezer and all digital platforms for free while keeping 80% of their royalties. Pro users of Vampr can keep 100% of their royalties. Josh Simons, CEO and co-founder says,

“Our goal with Vampr is to support creatives fostering connections and global opportunities. Providing free music distribution for our over 1 million members is the perfect addition to the suite of features serving our community,”

The app is currently having a successful crowd-funding campaign with WeFunder. So far more than $600,000 from 2,500 investors has been raised to date. The campaign is trending on the WeFunder platform. The latest round will be closing in early 2022 with a maximum offering of $4 million. The company was launched in 2016 and has plans to use new funds to scale the business ahead of an anticipated Series A round in the next 18 months.

Vampr has over 1.1 million members in more than 190 countries. In their short time of existence, they have been recognized with more than 10 industry awards including the SF Music Summit and being named Apple’s Best Of Year.
